ABOUT ME

Senior Frontend Developer with over 6 years of experience building modern web applications that users love to use. I thrive when I can transform complex business requirements into clear, intuitive interfaces—and I’ve had the pleasure of doing just that for international clients in the logistics and construction industries. I know React and TypeScript inside and out, but the technical details are only part of the story—I care just as much about ensuring the code is elegant, the interface is well-thought-out, and the user ultimately says, “It just works.” Currently open to remote projects—I thrive in environments where initiative, good communication, and a desire to create something valuable are valued.
